DOWN THE RABBITHOLE OPENING RECEPTION.

IRELAND: THEN & NOW PANEL FEATURING EAVAN BOLAND, SADHBH WALSH, AND COLM TÓIBÍN.

We are delighted to share our annual report for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2016. As we reflect on our accomplishments, it is a pleasurable duty to acknowledge the essential role that stakeholders of all kinds played. Through their engagement and support, our members, donors, visitors, Reading Group participants, salon attendees, Bloomsday readers, Rosenbacchanal attendees, guest speakers, researchers, board, staff, volunteers, neighbors, and more have helped the Rosenbach meet its goals and make it the unique place it is. We also owe a special debt of gratitude to our partners at the Free Library of Philadelphia, for while it is important to emphasize that the Rosenbach still must raise every dollar it spends, logistical and other kinds of support from the Library have enabled us to set ever higher goals.

Many notable visitors came to Philadelphia in FY16. Pope Francis garnered the most headlines, and we mounted an exhibition of early printing from Central and South America in his honor. Alice Liddell Hargreaves (the “real” Alice behind Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland) visited us in the form of Lewis Carroll’s original manuscript for the famous story. Hargreaves had achieved fame and fortune when she sold museum co-founder Dr. A.S.W. Rosenbach the Alice manuscript in 1928, and he promptly organized an exhibition of it at the then-new Parkway Central Library. Rosenbach later donated the manuscript to the British Library, and it returned to Philadelphia for the first time in nearly a century as part of a celebration of the 150th anniversary of Alice, one that included a large exhibition at the Rosenbach and events with community partners throughout the region.

Novelist Colm Tóibín garnered the most applause in FY16, as he headlined a panel about the centenary of the Easter Rising before nearly 400 eager participants. It was his second appearance in as many years, a telling example of the dramatic increase in adult programs at the Rosenbach. We invite thought leaders from all over the world to give engaging talks or lead reading groups—typically much more intimate in size—inspired by our collections. Thanks to all of these programs, and the donors who make them possible, the Rosenbach is becoming a place of unlimited intellectual engagement. Our audience is growing in size and diversity, filling us with enthusiasm for the coming year. We look forward to greeting you here soon.

Sincerely,

Derick Dreher

July – September 2015

The Rosenbach acquired a rare first edition of Mary Shelley's Frankenstein; or, The Modern Prometheus (1818), thanks to major support from the B.H. Breslauer Foundation and gifts from Mark Samuels Lasner and Clarence Wolf. The Rosenbach also commissioned a photographic installation about Marianne Moore by Philadelphia artist Eileen Neff.

In August, the Rosenbach was named Best Bibliophile Retreat in Philadelphia Magazine's coveted "Best of Philly" list.

On September 1, the Rosenbach opened an exhibition entitled Catholics in the New World: A Selection of 16th–18th Century Texts. Designed to welcome and inspire guests to Philadelphia for the World Meeting of Families, including Pope Francis, the exhibition included prayer books, catechisms printed in multiple Native American languages, and the oldest surviving book printed in the Western Hemisphere.

October – December 2015

October saw the opening of Down the Rabbit Hole: 150 Years of Alice in Wonderland, an exhibition that explored the cultural impact of Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, Philadelphia-area connections to the book and its muse, and puzzles and games devised by Lewis Carroll. During the first week of the exhibition, the Rosenbach displayed the original illustrated manuscript by Carroll, once owned by Dr. Rosenbach and on loan from the British Library, attracting a record number of visitors to the museum. Derick Dreher discussed this incredible artifact in a keynote speech for the British Council in December.

A number of programs complemented the exhibition. Families and schoolchildren engaged with ideas and images from Alice through activities such as flamingo croquet in Dilworth Park on October 21 and an enormous chess game with living pieces on November 17, presented in partnership with the Free Library, the Masterman School, and the Philadelphia School. On October 21, the Rosenbach hosted a sold-out evening with Brain Pickings's Maria Popova, artist Maira Kalman, and cognitive scientist Alexandra Horowitz; their conversation explored Alice as an allegory for existence through science, storytelling, and art. Curator Leonard Marcus spoke about Carroll's legacy the next day.

On November 30, the Delancey Society gathered at Sotheby's in New York to remember our late trustee Bob Pirie.

January – March 2016

Poet Diarmuid Johnson spoke on February 25, and on March 1 the Pennsylvania Ballet and Piffaro collaborated on an event celebrating Don

Quixote. On March 15, 250 people attended "Medical Oddities of Alice: Potions, Poisons, and Pathology," a program hosted by the Mütter Museum. The program featured Mütter Museum curator Anna Dhody and neuroophthalmologist Grant T. Liu in a discussion of "Alice in Wonderland Syndrome," a disorienting neurological condition that affects human perception.

Also in March, Free Library President and Director Siobhan Reardon and Derick Dreher led discussions about the importance of libraries, followed by the performance of the play Spines by Inis Nua Theatre Company. Dreher also participated in a television interview on the same topic with Vai Sikahema for NBC News.

Continuing the celebration of the 150th anniversary of Alice, the Rosenbach opened an exhibition to explore a little-known element of the story: the hobby that brought Charles Dodgson and Alice Liddell together. Through the Camera Lens: The Photography of Charles Dodgson opened March 25. Photographer Ron Tarver spoke about the topic on April 7.

April – June 2016

The 24th annual Bloomsday Festival debuted the Rosenbach's new partnership with the Irish Department of Foreign Affairs. The year 2016 also marked the centenary of the Easter Rising—the grassroots movement that ultimately secured Ireland's independence. On June 2, contemporary Irish writers Colm Tóibín, Eavan Boland, and Sadhbh Walshe conducted a panel discussion about the ways independence and nationhood have shaped contemporary society; they spoke before a sold-out audience at the Parkway Central Library's Montgomery Auditorium. On June 16, the annual Bloomsday readings attracted just over 1,000 people.

Additional programs included Deborah Lutz speaking about the Brontës on May 11 and independent curator Leonard Marcus interviewing The Phantom Tollbooth author Norton Juster on May 12.
